OVERVIEW

Dan solves antitrust and related regulatory issues for businesses in the construction, modeling, sports, financial services, publishing, energy, retail, and health care industries. He collaborates with businesses on planning strategic acquisitions in concentrated markets, structuring joint ventures and other collaborations, advocating before enforcement agencies (DOJ, the FTC, and State AGs), and litigating complex antitrust cases in federal courts across the nation.

Utilizing his knowledge of markets and trade policy and dynamics, Dan similarly assists businesses with navigating trade and supply chain issues, including foreign direct investment (CFIUS), export controls (EAR) and tariffs, duties, and trade sanctions.

Renewable energy developers, electric vehicle manufacturers, and battery supply chain companies involved in the electrification ecosystem across the U.S. rely on Dan to navigate complex regulatory and policy matters to help develop a robust domestic green energy infrastructure.

REPRESENTATIVE MATTERS

Antitrust Litigation

- In a seminal group boycott case, represented Bauer Publishing, one of five publishers sued by magazine wholesaler Anderson News, for allegedly perpetrating a boycott to drive it out of business. After extensive discovery, Bauer successfully moved for summary judgment on the basis that Anderson could not support an inference of collusion. The U.S. District Court for the Southern District of New York granted summary judgment, dismissing the case which sought $371 million in damages, which was affirmed by the Second Circuit.
- Represented the largest electrical union chapter in the U.S. in a group boycott case brought by contractors with laborers affiliated with members of a rival union. After extensive discovery, the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of New York granted summary judgment finding that the proof did not support an inference of collusion. The Second Circuit affirmed the decision.
- Represented a commercial bank in asserting a monopolization claim against a large Patent Assertion Entity for its acquisition of, and enforcement activities with respect to, a patent portfolio. This was the first antitrust plaintiff to advance this theory to the summary judgment stage of litigation.
- Represented the Consumer Data Industry Association in obtaining dismissal with prejudice by the U.S. District
