David Anthony handles high-stakes litigation against consumer financial services businesses and other highly regulated companies across the U.S. He is a strategic thinker who balances his extensive litigation experience with practical business advice to solve companies' hardest problems.

OVERVIEW

David Anthony has a national litigation practice representing companies in highly regulated industries, including consumer financial services companies. He has significant experience in class actions and complex individual lawsuits. He has significant litigation experience defending cases under the Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA), the Fair Debt Collection Practices Act (FDCPA), the Telephone Consumer Protection Act (TCPA), and numerous other federal and state consumer protection statutes, with particular expertise in matters that often involve companion government investigations.

Clients rely on David to resolve their most difficult and complex legal and business challenges both in and out of the courtroom. David's experience includes matters involving issues of first impression; bet-the-company litigation; the unique challenges of class actions lawsuits and mass litigation; cutting-edge claims under the FCRA, FDCPA, TCPA, and other consumer protection statutes; Tribal law in the Native American online lending context; the overlap between class action lawsuits and regulatory litigation by federal and state regulators; and complex business disputes.

He has served as lead counsel in more than 125 class action lawsuits and more than 2,000 individual lawsuits in courts across the United States. David understands the outsized financial risks and critical implications associated with class action lawsuits that impact how these cases are defended, tried and settled. He has special experience in handling cases in the Eastern District of Virginia (also known as the Rocket Docket), which has unique rules, risks and pitfalls for defendants. David has also been appointed as a Special Master to the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Virginia handling discovery disputes and serving as a mediator. In addition, he has served as a private neutral mediator for class action and individual cases.

REPRESENTATIVE MATTERS

Financial Services
