Doug has more than 40 years of experience advising banks and financial services companies on mergers and acquisitions, mutual and public bank corporate governance, demutualization, IPOs, and major legislative changes such as the Dodd-Frank Act.

OVERVIEW

Douglas represents publicly and privately held banks and savings associations in various corporate and securities transactions. His experience as a senior federal bank regulator during the formative years of the modern federal regulatory system led to his designing of precedent-setting transactions. Douglas was the principal attorney in structuring and advising the creation of the first multistate banking networks and designing numerous unique capital structures. In addition to his banking practice, he has a strong focus on financial service companies, including insurance, investment banking, real estate firms, and credit unions. Douglas assists clients with regulatory compliance, holding company formations and acquisitions, de novo bank formation, mergers and acquisitions, and securities offerings, including initial public offerings and venture financing.

Douglas has extensive experience with mutual bank governance, demutualization, mergers/conversions, and dissident depositor litigation. He also advises on executive and employee compensation structuring and has played a pivotal role in the passage of significant financial institution legislation. Currently, Douglas is engaged in projects aimed at tailoring banking regulations to the needs of community banks. He also advises clients on how to align banking regulations with fintech innovations and blockchain technology.

Douglas' background in senior governmental positions, including as director of the securities division and senior associate general counsel at the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, further enhances his ability to help clients navigate complex legal challenges.

Douglas is a frequent commentator in national media and a sought-after speaker at industry conferences, sharing his knowledge on a wide range of topics relevant to the evolving financial services sector.
