Matt is a seasoned litigator with extensive experience handling complex, high-stakes disputes in state and federal courts throughout the U.S. and around the globe.

OVERVIEW

Matt's practice primarily focuses on class actions and complex litigation, particularly within the banking and financial services industries. He represents large international banks in class actions involving alleged manipulation of interest rate benchmarks, such as U.S. dollar LIBOR, EURIBOR, and Yen LIBOR, as well as foreign exchange (FX) benchmarks. Matt also defends sponsors, trustees, and issuers of residential mortgage-backed securities (RMBS) in litigation brought by private plaintiffs, as well as federal entities, like the National Credit Union Administration Board and various Federal Home Loan Banks.

Matt's clients include banks, mortgage lenders, servicers, securitized trusts, and student loan trusts, but he also represents clients outside of the financial services sector in various antitrust matters.
