OVERVIEW

Jay assists clients in heavily regulated industries, including health care, energy, insurance, emerging industries, and data privacy. He provides both regulatory legal advice and government relations strategies. Jay's past and current clients include Fortune 10 companies, startups, nonprofits, industry associations, and advocacy groups. Recognizing that state government matters are often complex and multifaceted, he utilizes regulatory guidance, government advocacy, or both in tandem to deliver tailored solutions for each client's unique needs.

Previously, Jay was general counsel for two key legislative committees in the Massachusetts legislature chaired by Rep. Aaron Michlewitz. He played an integral role in drafting landmark state laws on transportation network companies (e.g., Uber and Lyft), short-term rentals (e.g., Airbnb), as well as state laws concerning health care, insurance, and banking.
