OVERVIEW

Before retiring, Jeremy devoted more than three decades to representing the consumer financial services industry. He focused his practice on federal and state lending and consumer practices laws, with emphasis on the interplay between federal and state laws, joint ventures between banks and nonbank financial services providers, the development and documentation of new financial services products (especially products designed to serve the needs of unbanked and under-banked consumers), bank overdraft practices and disclosures, geographic expansion initiatives, and compliance with federal and state consumer protection laws, including statutes prohibiting unfair, deceptive and abusive acts and practices (UDAAP); usury laws; the Truth in Lending Act (TILA); the Electronic Funds Transfer Act; E-SIGN; the Equal Credit Opportunity Act; and the Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA).

Jeremy regularly interacted with regulators on behalf of industry trade groups. He drafted a number of amicus curiae briefs to the U.S. Supreme Court and other courts on behalf of a number of industry and business trade groups, including the American Bankers Association, the Consumer Bankers Association, the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, the Mortgage Bankers Association, the Financial Services Roundtable, and the American Financial Services Association.

In addition, Jeremy represented banks, thrifts, and other entities in regulatory diligence matters, charter transactions; mergers, acquisitions, and conversions; asset securitizations; purchases of loan servicing rights; and public offerings and private placements of equity and debt instruments.
