OVERVIEW

Jessie represents clients in white-collar cases, internal investigations, and employment litigation. She has experience defending clients against investigations and enforcement actions by state attorney general offices and the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC), involving allegations of health care fraud and securities violations. Jessie also handles employment litigation and compliance issues related to employee benefits, wage and hour disputes, and discrimination and retaliation claims.

During her time in law school, Jessie interned at the Massachusetts Court of Appeals, where she assisted Justice Joseph Ditkoff in preparing for appellate hearings and drafting judicial decisions. Jessie also represented clients in housing and unemployment benefit cases through Boston University's Civil Litigation Clinic.
