OVERVIEW

Keith represents financial institutions in their capacities as trustee, collateral administrator, and securities intermediary in various financial transactions. He also represents issuers, developers, and financial institutions in the use of special assessment revenue bonds, refunding bonds, system revenue bonds, and general obligation bonds. Keith has assisted a diverse range of clients in navigating the complexities of developing master planned residential and mixed-use communities, as well as completing capital improvement projects and other improvement projects.

In addition to finance, Keith advises clients on corporate governance and transactions. His experience includes handling complex contractual agreements involving unique service and payment structures, revenues streams, and intellectual property rights related to digital media and brand management.
