OVERVIEW

Matt handles commercial, product liability, and trade secret litigation, as well as direct defense and insurance coverage matters, for domestic insurers and the London market in matters pending across multiple jurisdictions in the U.S. and abroad. He handles, participates in, and oversees cases in trial and appellate courts up to the U.S. Supreme Court and the Cour de Cassation (French Supreme Court). Matt also advises clients on privacy and cybersecurity issues, risk mitigation, and related issues. Before entering the legal profession, he served as an engineering consultant on government and privately funded ventures.

Matt advises U.S. and London market insurers on aviation, privacy, and cybersecurity issues and assists commercial participants in the Unmanned Aerial Systems (drones) market on regulatory compliance, risk mitigation, and related issues.

Matt is actively involved in the defense of claims arising out of a number of commercial aviation disasters, including Adam Air Flight 292, Adam Air Flight 574, Airblue Flight 202, Flash Airlines Flight 604, Garuda Flight 200, Sudan Airways Flight 109, and Yemenia Airways Flight 626.

Matt also assisted in the defense of the security company that conducted pre-board passenger screening for American Airlines Flight 11 concerning claims arising out of the terrorist attacks on September 11, 2001.
