Nick's decade-long focus on white collar criminal defense and complex commercial litigation distinctly positions him as a trusted advocate for individual and corporate clients.

OVERVIEW

Nick brings substantial experience in white collar criminal defense, internal investigations, and commercial litigation. He represents individual and corporate clients in state and federal courts, guiding them through every stage from preliminary investigations to final appeals.

Nick's white collar practice includes defending clients in cases involving bribery, corruption, embezzlement, fiduciary issues, workplace safety, and environmental crimes. He also conducts internal investigations into whistleblower claims and provides compliance counsel on the FCPA and international trade sanctions.

On the commercial litigation side, Nick handles domestic and international contract disputes, tort liability, and statutory compliance matters across various industries, including energy, construction, insurance, consumer products, and environmental sectors.
