Olga represents clients in matters relating to mechanics' liens, insurance, real estate litigation, foreclosure, and more. Olga's experience representing clients in litigation, from a case's inception to its conclusion (including trial), prime her to advocate for clients facing complex legal issues.

OVERVIEW

Olga is an experienced litigator with a rich background in construction law. After receiving her J.D. with cum laude distinction from the University at Buffalo Law School, Olga gained significant experience in litigation. She has experience advocating for her clients in all stages of commercial, insurance, construction, and appellate litigations. Olga ascertained litigation goals for clients by deploying her deep understanding of complex legal issues.

Most recently, Olga established her own law office and served as principal attorney. She represented clients in matters involving construction, mechanics' liens, insurance, commercial and real estate litigation, foreclosure, and more.

REPRESENTATIVE MATTERS

- Advised a publicly traded company on construction related disputes, represented the client in number of lawsuits, and drafted, reviewed, and negotiated construction contracts for projects of various sizes.
- Litigated numerous mechanics' lien foreclosure cases and achieved favorable settlement for clients.
- Represented a contractor in a complex arbitration involving defective construction claims and attained the best possible outcome.
- Negotiated and successfully litigated a license agreement for a real estate developer.
- Negotiated commercial leases for warehouses on behalf of tenants.
