OVERVIEW

Reade counsels gaming companies, financial institutions, fintech and social media platforms, and other commercial clients on regulatory, enforcement, and compliance matters spanning three core areas: gaming and sports betting, consumer protection, and privacy and data security. His gaming practice covers daily fantasy sports investigations, state wagering licensure, social casino litigation, and federal and state gambling compliance. On the consumer protection side, he has represented clients before the CFPB, FTC, and state AGs, negotiating settlements and consent orders, and litigating high-stakes matters in administrative courts and arbitration proceedings.

Reade also advises technology companies, financial services institutions, and corporate clients on privacy and data security matters, including data breach response, regulatory compliance, and privacy due diligence in mergers and acquisitions.

Reade is certified by the International Association of Privacy Professionals (IAPP) as a Certified Information Privacy Professional in the United States (CIPP/US).
