Shannon collaborates with clients to implement practical solutions to their corporate compliance needs. Working closely with executive management and directors, she helps clients merge their compliance efforts and business goals to improve efficiency and corporate performance.

OVERVIEW

Shannon is a skilled corporate and securities practitioner who handles corporate governance, public disclosure, and executive compensation matters for U.S. public companies. She works closely with directors and executive management on a range of corporate and regulatory requirements under federal securities regulations, stock exchange listing rules, and state corporate law. In addition to counseling companies on governance, investor relations, and public company reporting requirements, Shannon proactively conducts regular reviews of her clients' policies and procedures, and updates them as needed.

Shannon designs and administers effective compensation and retention strategies for key personnel, including cash and equity incentive programs. She deeply understands her clients' compensation goals and develops programs that help to achieve them. Drawing on her SEC disclosure and corporate governance experience, Shannon delivers comprehensive executive compensation advice and works with clients to help provide peace of mind that the required corporate approval and applicable disclosure obligations are satisfied.
