Tara represents clients in complex disputes across the U.S., focusing on privacy and cybersecurity issues and financial services litigation. She navigates the evolving landscape of class actions and enforcement actions related to data collection, use, sharing, and protection.

OVERVIEW

Tara's extensive experience includes handling business and consumer finance litigation, addressing claims of consumer protection law violations, contract breaches, fraud, negligence, and misrepresentation. She also advises clients on insurance disputes, merger and acquisition issues, and regulatory matters.

Tara offers clients a strategic approach and an ability to anticipate and mitigate risks. Her courtroom experience, including oral arguments and litigation outcomes in favor of clients, underscores her capability to defend clients effectively. Tara has a thorough understanding of privacy and cybersecurity regulations and utilizes a proactive stance in safeguarding clients' interests.

REPRESENTATIVE MATTERS

- CitiMortgage, Inc. v. Richard Tanasi, 176 Conn. App. 829 (2017). Affirmed denial of a motion to dismiss that attempted to impose additional pleading requirements on a plaintiff in foreclosures.
- In re Chickosky, 498 B.R. 4 (Bkrtcy, D.Conn. 2013). Obtained a denial of confirmation of the Chapter 12 plan after demonstrating the debtor's plan was not feasible, and the debtor could not use the confirmation process to eliminate cross-collateralization rights of the lender.
- Parola v. Citibank (South Dakota), N.A., 894 F. Supp. 2d 188 (D. Conn. 2012). Dismissal of all claims asserted against a private lender regarding student loan repayment options available under the Higher Education Act.
