Entrepreneurs and their companies (including emerging technology companies and family owned businesses), private equity sponsors, growth equity and venture capital investors, and public and private companies turn to Tom for strategic, practical counsel regarding mergers and acquisitions, growth equity and venture capital financings, technology matters, and outside general counsel guidance.

OVERVIEW

Tom focuses on advising and executing mergers and acquisitions, private equity, and growth equity venture capital transactions. He also serves as outside general counsel to several emerging, middle market, and public companies who rely on him for general corporate matters and for coordinating additional firm resources as necessary and at all points of a company's life cycle. Tom works with clients across many industries including various areas of technology (SAAS/cloud software, predictive analytics, machine learning and big data, blockchain/crypto/NFT's, industrial technology, augmented reality, ecommerce and internet services, energy technology, health care information technology, 3D printing, fintech (including wealth management and payment technologies), geospatial/aerospace/defense related technologies), energy, natural resources and infrastructure, health care, life sciences (including medical devices and biologics), manufacturing, business services (including advertising and legal services), food and beverage, and gaming.

Tom's experience includes serving as in-house counsel to the treasury and capital markets groups of a Fortune 500 company. He also serves as co-chair of the firm's Emerging Company + Venture Capital group, is on the steering committee of the firm's Technology Group, and is a member of the firm's Health Sciences and Energy Groups.

Tom founded and leads the Mid-Atlantic Energy Technology Forum and the Health Care IT Forum. He served as chairman of the 2009 IMPACT Conference (formerly MAC Conference), and co-chairman of the 2023 Mid-Atlantic Venture and Growth Equity Conference. In addition, Tom sits on the Ben Franklin Technology Partners (BFTP) Investment Advisory Committee, and was previously a member of the American Bar Association's Venture Capital and Private Equity Subcommittee.

Tom is a frequent speaker on topics such as mergers and acquisitions, venture capital, entrepreneurship, private equity, and technology transfer. He has served as a guest lecturer at Villanova University School of Law and was an adjunct professor for the University of Baltimore's MBA program.
