

Timothy I. Kahler

Retired Partner

timothy.kahler@troutman.com

Tim was a transactional lawyer and business counsel to public and private companies, financial institutions, investors, startup companies, entrepreneurs, and global companies investing in the U.S. By focusing on client goals, he helped achieve practical and creative solutions that maximized outcomes.

OVERVIEW

Tim represented clients in mergers and acquisitions transactions, financings through public and private securities offerings, joint ventures, intellectual property licenses, employment agreements, securities law compliance, and day-to-day business matters. He had in-depth experience representing companies in several industries, including pharmaceuticals, finance and capital, traditional and alternative energy, entertainment and intellectual property, health care and medical devices, real estate, defense, telecommunications, technology, textiles and apparel, automotive parts, and natural resources.

Tim represented parties to mergers, stock sales, asset sales or other M&A transactions. He also planned, negotiated and documented transactions for startups and emerging companies, including business plans, private placement memorandums, subscription documents, founder agreements, and compensation plans and arrangements.

Tim regularly represented financial institutions such as broker-dealers and private equity and hedge funds in formation and ownership changes. He served as counsel to executives and companies in negotiating and documenting employment and compensation packages and to issuers and underwriters or placement agents in public offerings and private placement transactions.

Tim was a former certified public accountant with an international public accounting firm.

EDUCATION AND CERTIFICATIONS

EDUCATION

- Stanford Law School, J.D., 1983
- University of Washington, B.A., cum laude, 1975