Tom's considerable experience in investment management and securities compliance, corporate governance, and fiduciary matters, alongside his significant representation in joint venture relationships, makes him a trusted advisor for complex financial and corporate transactions.

OVERVIEW

Tom's practice focuses on investment management, securities, and corporate law. He has experience counseling clients on securities, investment adviser, trust company, investment company, and broker-dealer regulation. Tom has considerable experience counseling clients on corporate governance and fiduciary matters, particularly in the insurance industry. In addition, he represents parties in joint venture relationships, with a particular focus on innovative joint ventures between health insurers and large health systems.

Tom's counseling and compliance experience includes the registration of federally covered and state-covered investment advisers, organization of registered and exempt investment funds, and addressing regulatory issues for broker-dealers and trust companies. He also has a significant background in transactional work, representing clients across the health care, finance, insurance, and food and beverage sectors.
