OVERVIEW

Vince brings extensive experience in complex commercial litigation and arbitration, representing large and mid-size companies across various industries. His practice encompasses commercial real estate and lease disputes, contract issues, franchise conflicts, health care and employee benefits, software disputes, and trade secrets and noncompetes.

Vince represents financial service entities in credit reporting and real property rights suits, municipalities in breach of contract and fraud litigation, and industrial facilities in tax exemption litigation. He also works to secure injunctive relief for franchisors, manages complex software implementation litigations, and defends major national companies in consumer class actions and false advertising claims.

Vince also handles bankruptcy court adversary proceedings, shareholder rights disputes, and advises on records retention and e-discovery practices.

REPRESENTATIVE MATTERS

- Represented financial service entities in suits involving credit reporting, real property rights, and taxes.
- Represented a municipality in a suit for breach of contract and fraud arising from a major development project. The proposed development was critical to the municipality's economic growth plans. While the suit was pending, a settlement was reached that provided for the completion of the development project.
- Represented an industrial facility in litigation with a taxing authority to preserve an exemption from ad valorem property tax. Loss of the tax exemption would have been devastating to the future of the facility. After an initial ruling in favor of the client by the district court, and following oral argument in the appeal, a resolution for the client was reached.
- Represented a manufacturing company in its claims, pursued in court and in arbitration, against a software vendor and an implementer over a failed ERP software implementation. The failed implementation resulted in significant damages to the company. An arbitration panel ordered a multimillion-dollar award in favor of the manufacturer.
- Represented a manufacturer in litigation filed by a distributor customer alleging defective products. The claims implicated a major product line and more than $1 million in damages. Following extensive discovery and settlement negotiations to narrow the scope of claims, a settlement in favor of the client was reached.
